

YILGARNIA WINES

Vintage Report 2005

The growing season was dry and warm, being one of the driest since records have been kept. Immediately following harvest a warm and wet period occurred with over 200mm of rain. Harvesting started in the cool of the morning at 1 am and by 8 am the fruit was in the fermentation tanks. The vines were deliberately pruned to limit the amount of fruit grown and irrigation was minimal.
